Our reference: Fol 4748

Date: 29 December 2016

Dear Mr Jefferson,

Thank you for your Freedom of Information request received on 13 December 2016. You asked:

"From the information you have on file please kindly provide the guidance to DWP/jobcentre staff for sending communications to claimant unable to talk, read or write".

DWP Response:

The Department has a variety of methods to help support disabled customers to communicate. In doing so we will assess the customer's needs and provide tailored support. These including face to face contact on our premises; home visits; telephony; online services; and written communications. The Department does also provide British sign language (BSL) interpreters or non-spoken language interpreters, using contracted providers for customers who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired. We also have induction loops; Email; Lip reading; use of representatives and textphones.

You may find the following extract from internal DWP guidance useful. This provides an extract from DWP internal instructions for arranging non-spoken language interpreting:

British Sign Language (BSL) or non-spoken language interpreting

22. DWP has a responsibility to provide interpreters for claimants or customers who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired.

23. Non-spoken languages includes Sign Supported English, British Sign Language, Finger Spelling, Notetaking and Speech to Text Operators, Lip Speaking, Deafblind Communicators, and other sign languages.

24. BSL or non spoken interpreters are booked from the face to face suppliers using the same procedure as booking a foreign language face to face interpreter.

25. Staff should obtain a BSL or non spoken face to face interpreter from the face to face suppliers list, unless cost-free community interpreters are normally used and available.

26. In the case of BSL or non spoken interpreters, local arrangements with off contract suppliers can continue where this offers value for money and/or the claimant or customer has an established or trusted relationship with the interpreter.

27. For BSL, Prestige requires a minimum of 2 weeks notice to book an interpreter because demand exceeds supply.

28. For further information see the communication support guidance for people who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired.

29. When working solo for more than 1 hours the interpreter would need a complete break every 30 minutes. Without such breaks, the interpreting service can deteriorate. We would advise staff to plan activities to take this into account.

Please also find attached an extract from DWP internal instructions on representatives and intermediaries which can also be used to help customers who find it difficult to communicate.

Representatives and Intermediaries

- 1. All types of disability and all customers with protected characteristics can be supported by providing services through a representative or intermediary. This can be done as a reasonable adjustment for disabled people and as additional assistance where appropriate for any customer.
- 2. Some of our claimants/customers want or need to use a representative/intermediary to help them access DWP services. If a claimant/customer wishes to use a representative/intermediary to access our services, then follow the Working with Representatives Guidance and work with them. Note: you still need to be aware of the duty to protect claimants'/customers' personal information, and disclosing information rules. If you feel a representative or intermediary would help the customer check with them first; don't make assumptions. The only exception to this rule is that you can assume the representative/intermediary has the claimant's/customer's permission where the implicit consent rules apply.
- 3. Do:
- apply the Working with Representatives Guidance;
- treat each case on an individual basis;
- make a written record of what was disclosed, to whom, and when in all cases; and
- follow the guidance for bogus callers if you are suspicious of any enquiry.

4. Do not:

- disclose information if you have any reasonable doubt
- be pressured into giving information refer the call to your line manager;
- assume written consent is for an indefinite period. The authority to represent the claimant/customer is for a particular item of business; and
- apply blanket policies in disclosing to representatives/intermediaries. In all cases decisions must be made on an individual basis.
