Sportsmanship Etiquette

1. Captains and co-captains are the only players allowed to dispute calls with the referee. If you are not a captain, then tell your captain of your issue and let them handle it accordingly.
2. The referee makes the final call on plays. Period.
3. Do not heckle the other team in a way that could offend. If you're gonna trash-talk, make it friendly.
4. Remember, our number one goal is for everyone to have FUN playing kickball. Don't lose your cool, or you'll be asked to leave.

TEAM AWARDS

WAKA BOJANGLES

There wasn't really a question of who our MVP would be this week. Our resident red-head may pose as a weak spot in the infield and our opponents may think, "Hmm...I'm gonna kick it straight for that chick who is more concerned with dancing than kickball"—and they'd be mistaken. She's got matrix moves to avoid the ball when running and grippy cat-like reflexing hands that snatch the ball in mid dance move.

Julie Shalvey

Cody

WAKA SHAME

This week's MVP goes to the one and only Cody. Cody has an awesome talent and habit of showing up to every game fashionably late. Luckily this week he redeemed himself on the field with several clutch catches, was swift around the bases and showed his cat like speed and reflexes. He also displayed his sweet moves at the bar for those who were around to see them. For those of you that missed out, guess you'll have to wait until next week.

Amanda and Wes-Stache

BALLS & DOLLS

Amanda, the scoringest player on the team, was feeling the luck of the Irish this week with 2 runs! Must've been those fancy green nails, shorts, and socks! She also wins an award for owning the karaoke stage! "I love 'Spring Break Amanda'!"

It's a Christmas miracle! Wes made it to the game on time TWO weeks in a row! Yay Wes, aka Calvin Klein underwear model!

BT Daisey

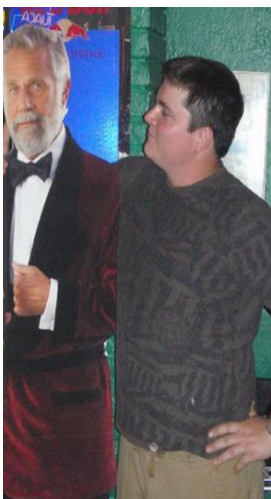

Hey fellas! This week we have a tasty piece of meat for you. I introduce you to BT Daisy! Whether hes blasting down some Smirnoff Ices or getting an in the park grand slam with an amazing slide to home plate, BT Daisy is always ready for a "good time." Let this little stinker slide his way in to your heart. When he isn't out on a modeling shoot little flirt likes to customize his kickball shirt. BT is single and ready to mingle, although he is 48 years old, he still isn't afraid to show a little ab or stick his butt out. Don't be shy guys, this little tart won't be single long!

Our MVP for the week was Trey. He was doing his best Michael Jordan impersonation and playing while sick. Despite being on death's doorstep he made a few outstanding catches and got on base, too. Here's to hoping that he didn't pass on whatever it was to the rest of us or we might miss next weeks night at the bar... I mean game.

Trey Bearden

The "Party Rock" award goes to Wayne and Taylor, or LMFAO as we like to call them. You can always count on these two to bring the party on and off the field. It never ceases to amaze everyone how these two shut the bar down on a weekly basis. And a word of advice: you never want to be in the path of any ball they kick. You might lose some teeth. Way to go, guys!!

Taylor & Wayne

THE PUNCH

Pitch, Please! MVP goes to "THE PUNCH", the punch did its job so well, that 5 players were missing from the lineup. The punch had such an effect on the players that it allowed the Freedom's previous Champions to allow 8+ runs in 5 innings. Oh wait.. 5 innings? We didn't even play the 5th inning - that must have been THE PUNCH talking. Our CY

Young pitcher said he wasn't making enough money so after drinking too much punch he said screw these pitches and took our clutch outfielder to the snow for high dollar drinks and superb skiing. WTF? Church had it easy this week I suppose; the punch was in their favor. I guess we can give a special shout out to Tara Woman for that single run she had! Next week Pitch, Please! will be back in action with their complete lineup, I think Pitch, Please! raised enough money to get the full team back.
