AIHA Announces Election Results for Academy of Industrial Hygiene Council. Academy works to provide leadership in advancing the professional field of industrial hygiene

The American Industrial Hygiene Association (AIHA) has announced the results of the 2012 election for the Academy of Industrial Hygiene (AIH) Council. Council members will assume their new terms on Tuesday, October 30, at the Academy's annual business meeting during the annual AIHA Fall Conference in San Antonio, TX on October 27 -31. New Council Officers include:

- S.Z (Zack) Mansdorf, PhD, CIH, CSP, QEP, President
- Lauralynn Taylor McKernan, ScD, CIH, President-Elect
- John L. Henshaw, CIH, Vice President
- Perry W. Logan, PhD, CIH, Past President

John Henshaw, CIH joins the Council as the newly-elected Vice President. Mr. Henshaw has been an active member of AIHA since 1976 and has served AIHA in a variety of roles, including AIHA Board member and Past President. Mr. Henshaw is currently the Senior Vice President and Managing Principal of Industrial Hygiene & Safety at ChemRisk, LLC. "We are extremely pleased to welcome John to the Academy Executive Council." said Perry Logan, PhD, CIH, Academy president. "John's extensive professional and volunteer experience will be a great asset to the Academy. Throughout his career John has provided leadership and engagement for activities that strengthen the global CIH body while creating ways for early career professionals to raise their professional competency through certification

There is no doubt that he will bring new ideas to energize our CIHs and AIH Council to further strengthen our profession around the world". The AIH Council also includes the following participants or their designees: the president of the American Industrial Hygiene Association, the chair of the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists and the chair of the American Board of Industrial Hygiene. Through the council and its members, the Academy focuses on providing leadership in advancing the professional field of industrial hygiene, raising the level of competence of industrial hygienists, and securing wide recognition of the need for high quality industrial hygiene practice to ensure healthful working conditions in the various occupations and industries.

Sharon Kramer • Great! Thanks for the names of the new governing body. I would like to get this information to them that is important for all your members to know. And I would like to know how the governing body of AIHA intends to address these severe ethics violations by some AIHA members: "CA Orders Libel Confession On AIHA Linked In 4 Sentence Not Written ~Threatens Jail ~ $B public health policy & court science fraud certain AIHA members want hidden from others. Notice to AIHA President Fleeger attached <http://wp.me/p20mAH-iB> "

Peter Zavon • What a remarkable rant. The Council described here is not the governing body of AIHA. AIHA is not the body that addresses ethics complaints against individuals in the field of Industrial Hygiene.

Sharon Kramer • Who addresses ethics in AIHA when some AIHA members have gotten a court to order fraud be posted on the AIHA linked in board - this board - to deceive other members? This is not a complaint of actions in the field. This goes to the heart of AIHA's code of ethics. Its not a rant, but is certainly is a remarkable situation. Also remarkable, you obviously offered an opinion while not bothering to read the link of the subject of which you have chosen to comment. Also obvious, I have no intention of posting known fraudulent statements on this board, court order or not, to deceive the members of AIHA. Its an illegal court order to conceal some bad behavior by some well connected AIHA members & the courts, with broad impact on public health policy.

Peter, would you like me to post fraud on this board to fool AIHA members? Please read the link and the links within the link before you respond. <http://wp.me/p20mAH-iB>

Thanks
