

With only 13 fiscally conservative women in office in the 116th Congress, it is essential that we help GOP women raise enough money to run and WIN in 2020.

Early Support from Maggie's List

- Maggie's List endorses and funds women in the primary, as well as general elections when outstanding women candidates need support the most.
- Maggie's List provides direct funds and independent expenditures for our endorsed candidates.
- We help to elect women who are:
 - Fiscal conservatives that stand for less government
 - Advocates for more personal responsibility
 - Supporters of a strong national security
- Maggie's List does not use social issues as litmus tests. We determine which women candidates to endorse based on insight provided by our state chairs.
- Once a Maggie's List candidate is elected to Congress, we continue support with endorsements, media promotions and customized support based on the political landscape she is facing.

Maggie's List History

- Maggie's List was named in honor of Margaret Chase Smith, the first Republican woman to be elected to the US House, US Senate, and have her name placed in nomination for President by a major political party.
- Formed in 2010, Maggie's List has been active in over 120 elections.

PACs Supporting Republican Women Candidates

- Under current law, federal PACs are limited to giving $5,000 to each election (Primary and General).
- Your financial contribution to Maggie's List is critical so we may provide maximum support for our GOP women candidates.
