

Mr Googley's Australian Wildlife COLOUR-IN Safari

"Study these fascinating Australian Native Animals with me, Mr Googley, while you use your pencils, crayons or paints to add a splash of colour!"

Bilby.

During the day, this appealing little animal with its soft silver fur, lives in its burrow. It emerges at dusk to feed on seeds and insects, and gets most of its water requirements from its food.

Echidna. This small mammal feeds on ants and termites. Echidnas reproduce by laying eggs. When the young Echidna hatches, it is carried in the mother's pouch until its spines grow and it can defend itself.

Cockatoo. Australia's bushland is brought to life by the noise and colour of a large variety of parrots. One of the most familiar is the White Sulphur Crested Cockatoo.
