Giving Spring Break a good name! NJIT students have taken the generous step of re-defining Spring Break by donating their time during their break to build an official space for the Wynona's House Closet. Often when our families come to us, it is in a moment of crisis and emergency relocation. The Wynona's House Closet ensures that in this moment, our children and our families have what they need. Coats, shoes, shirts, pants, socks, toiletries, personal hygiene items, dignity... We are grateful for these NJIT student volunteers.

In the two months of 2018, we have inducted our first group of FAVI (Family Advocacy Volunteer Initiative) volunteers, and our second group of FAVI volunteers completed the 30-hour training. The FAVI volunteers learned how to provide long-term support to families of children who have experienced severe sexual and physical abuse, which will enable them to play a vital role in the healing process. Trainers from Shoprite and Whole Foods conducted classes in healthy eating and how to navigate the NJ healthcare system. NJ Citizen Action taught courses in financial literacy and debt consolidation. Wynona House's own Chief Program Officer Carol Berger gave guidance in the understanding the Law, the Courts and the Criminal and Child Protection System and in the all-important areas of child abuse and neglect. Volunteers left the sessions with deeper knowledge of survival skills they will transmit to the families they will be helping. Pictured: our first class of FAVI volunteers.

Today--Dr Seuss's birthday--we are celebrating with our families and all of America the freedom that reading brings to all of us, adults and children alike. Reading sparks the imagination. It shows children that there are other worlds out there, and that whatever you might be feeling at any moment, there are other feelings and experiences waiting for you to explore. Kids will bring Dr. Seuss to life making "Cat in the Hat" hats, and by writing their own dreams and goals on our "Oh the Places You'll Go" Board. Pizza will be served to the children, and the night will end with cupcakes and a reading of a Dr. Seuss book.

What is a steel magnolia, anyway? It's a combination of traits embodied by the most unflinching of us – the strength of steel and the sensitivity of a magnolia. Showing sensitivity to others is strength – no one did it better than our founder, the late senator Wynona Lipman, a true steel magnolia.

The Steel Magnolia Gala – a fun night dedicated to a good cause – is your chance to support women and children who have experienced abuse or neglect by sponsoring a table, while having a great time at a fun night.

The achievements of Senator Wynona Lipman, variously called the "Lioness of the Senate" and "Steel Magnolia," were indeed remarkable. We celebrate her achievements in this Black History month not only as a person of color, but as a woman of color, and the place she won by her actions as a great American.

Her deep passion and commitment to social justice and equality, backed by her pronounced, admirable character traits -- persistence, powers of persuasion, ability to make alliances, negotiating with intelligence, and never swerving from core beliefs -- consistently turned dreams into reality.

One of her most enduring legacies is the Wynona Lipman Child Advocacy Center known as Wynona's House.

Wynona's House wants you. We're looking for you to join our Family Advocacy Volunteer Initiative, known simply as FAVI. Volunteers play a vital role in supporting children who have experienced severe physical and sexual abuse, and their families. Volunteers provide long-term support for non-offending families to assure that healing continues. Experiencing a traumatic event can have a lifetime effect on a vulnerable child. Volunteers take on the angelic mission of lessening negative effects, moving towards more positive outcomes. <https://wynonashouse.org/.../family-advocacy-volunteer-initi.../>

Adoptive parents have to be "traditional" families. Adopted children have too much "baggage." Older children in foster care must have something wrong with them. Agencies withhold information about the child to get them adopted.

The myths about adoption are plenty. The facts, however, tell a very different story.

Here is a list of resources and facts if you've been considering adopting a child.

You may not meet the family you help. You may not know their names or their story. But there is a child, a mother, a father, a sister, a brother whose life you impact. In their greatest moment of need, your support will help them with an emergency relocation, relieve their financial burden, protect their dignity.

This Giving Tuesday, we are grateful for your support of the families we serve.

A child harmed. A family in crisis. Police, the hospital, forensics, interviews, overwhelm. A team that comes together to care, to investigate, to collaborate, to heal. A family that is supported, a child that finds resilience. Hope for the future.

This Giving Tuesday, your donation to Wynona's Help will help a child and a family receive the care and support they need, not just in the moment of crisis, but as they move forward, through the healing process.
