Reflections on the weekend Scripture

1 Kings 17:10–16; Psalm 146; Hebrews 9:24–28; Mark 12:38–44

- When and how can we find justice? Is justice only achieved after death and through the judgment of God? Or can we find justice here and now, in ethical decisions and moral victories? In describing his apocalyptic vision, Daniel closes by saying, “those who lead the many to justice shall be like the stars forever” (Daniel 12:3). Those who work for justice may not achieve it, but they will remain forever a beacon for those who follow. Justice may not be found here and now, but working for it and leading others to it are rewarded in Daniel’s revelation.
- Amid the darkness and distress at the end of time, both Jesus and Daniel promise reward for those whom God has chosen. Daniel says that those who are “written in the book” shall escape. Jesus tells the disciples that the “elect” will be gathered by the angels. As destructive as the end times will be, God remains stronger than any force overcoming the earth, able to rescue all those who have been found worthy.
- We cannot know when the world will end, just as we do not know when our own worldly end will arrive. Therefore, we must always be ready. But we can be consoled in the redemptive sacrifice that Jesus made on the cross. As we heard in Hebrews, those who are made holy are made perfect forever. Jesus has enabled us to be worthy of being gathered by God at the end of time.

Question of the Week

How does not knowing when the end will come change the way I live my life?

Next Week’s Sunday’s Readings

Daniel 7:13–14; Psalm 93; Revelation 1:5–8; John 18:33b–37

Parish Activities and Announcements

Ending as we began. Since this is the last Sunday of Ordinary Time, we are returning to a topic we saw the very first Sunday of our year with St. Mark....prepare. The good news for each of us is that we remain disciples for another year and of course, the bad news is that we are one year closer to either our end or the end of time. The important consideration at this point is how much progress we have made over the past year in our development as better disciples and in particular, since it is timely, how have we come to love God and to love neighbor, that is, to love God through our adherence to his word and through regular worship and then love of neighbor through acts of practical charity, such as we see in this parish at Thanksgiving time. God remains steadfast in our lives and through the example of his son gives us all an example of unselfish love and devotion with the hope that we, going through our daily living, will also rise to the occasion and both love God and our neighbor with the ultimate hope that in witness to this, new disciples will emerge and we will have fulfilled the six word mission statement of this parish: Love God, Love Neighbor and Make Disciples. God bless Fr. Roger
