To Whom It May Concern:

I have known Rusty Jones well over 10 years now, and have worked closely with him for the past 5 years. Rusty served our company as a sales representative of one of our most important vendors. He brought to us a wealth of knowledge and experience in the raw materials that we purchased from his company, and that knowledge has translated in great benefits to our company's ongoing success.

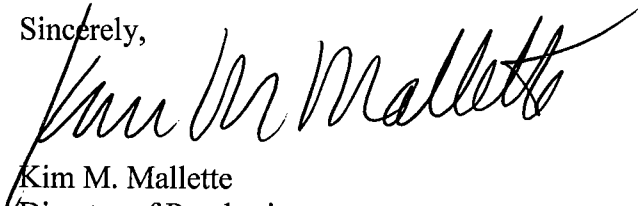

Rusty brings many great attributes to his customers as he "partners" with them in serving their needs, and at the same time advancing the best interests of his own company. He is diligent in his work ethic, prompt in his responses to his customer's request, and a man of integrity and honesty. He couples all of that with a great, winsome personality. His knowledge of the industry he is part of always comes to the forefront of what he is doing, and in the rare moments that he "lacks" the knowledge needed, he is quick to learn and provide answers that are helpful to resolving the problem that may have arisen.

Rusty is not afraid of "getting his hands dirty" and I have watched him inspect product, repack product, and work on equipment to benefit his customer. He is results driven, and is willing to jump through the hoops to accomplish the task at hand.

Rusty is liked by all who know him, and is the kind of person that his customers like to see and be around. His friendliness, high moral character, and desire to grow individually, as he grows his employer and customer, combine to make him a rare find for a company needing a winning team player.

I wholly recommend Rusty Jones to you for your consideration to become part of your company. Should you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
