

Conservatives

Reworded for accuracy 20th Feb 2015

Dear Conservative voter,

The news isn't good. We've tried insulting Ed Miliband almost daily but it's not helping us in the polls.

The problem is people have damaging statistics about the way in which we've behaved since 2010. The exponential rise in foodbanks. Our DWP related deaths. Our spending cuts on flooding and coastal protection shortly before the great floods came. The way we've mistreated the sick, disabled, the elderly and the fact we have this damn UN Inquiry looking into how we've treated them. The UN should mind their own business and let us mistreat people properly.

This election is going to be close - and we need every Conservative supporter to play their part.

We've devised a new scheme to help fool people known as "Share the fiction". Hopefully it'll help us win the election.

So please get sharing today - and play your part in this crucial election:

Share the fiction today

TORIES BLOCK A £3M EU FUND TO FEED THE POOR

BY JASON BEATTIE Political Editor

THE Tories will today oppose the founding of a fund which could pump millions of pounds into food banks for the needy.

Britain could have been in line for a £3million share of the European Union pot, worth £3billion across all 27 member states.

But the Coalition is the only European government to oppose the fund – called European Aid to the Most Deprived – and Conservative MEPs will vote against it today at the European Parliament in Strasbourg.

Labour MEP Richard Howitt said it was “heartless and callous”.

A Tory spokesman tried to explain the move: “It is not for the EU to dictate to member states how to run their welfare systems or how to help the needy. Individual countries must be allowed to decide for themselves how they raise and distribute relief for people who require help – be it from charities or the state.

“We won’t be taking any lectures from Brussels or from Labour about management of a welfare system which they allowed to grow out of control.”

But Mr Howitt accused the Conservatives of putting anti-Europe ideology before helping the poor. He said: “The Government does not want to give Europe credit for helping people and it doesn’t want to acknowledge there is real deprivation and hunger in Britain.”

Today’s vote comes as activists, unions and charities – including The Trussell Trust food banks – launch a petition in the Mirror calling for the Chancellor to tackle food poverty in next month’s Budget.

Unite’s Len McCluskey said: “Since coming to power this government has created a cost of living crisis, which has driven hundreds of thousands of families into food poverty. This year’s Budget will be a chance for the Chancellor to start undoing some of this damage.”

LYN REGRETTED VOTING TORY

John Richards At 52 I too have voted Conservative for almost all of my life. I won't make that mistake EVER again. I had to stop work, during their previous Thatcher-Major administration, to look after my mother who was ravaged with Alzheimer's disease for a decade and found myself penalised by the Tory's even though I was making up for the shortfall of NHS and social care during their dog-eat-dog reign. Now I am out of work through disability and chronic ill health and the song remains the same. The Conservatives are not merely the Nasty Party, they are the Inhumane & Barbarism Party as they wage a war of fiscal terror on the domestic market whilst seeking to bomb other nations into submission as though they haven't yet acclimatised to the loss of Empire.

JOAN REGRETTED VOTING TORY

I'll never vote Tory/Lib Dem again

Perhaps politicians and the tabloids sometimes forget that it's not only Labour voters who get sick, become disabled or lose their jobs. When it happens to a Conservative supporter it can come as a bit of a shock.

"For the first time in my life I do not know who to vote for. After what Ian Duncan Smith put me through I cannot ever vote Tory again, but it is hard making a new choice."

"Vote this coalition out. I voted conservative for all my life. Never again. I don't trust a word that comes out of their mouths, especially the DWP and Employment ministers."

"I would prefer the Downing Street cat to get elected rather than the Conservatives, and, I like many voted for them in the last election."

"Our family would never vote for a tory government ever again!"

"I am in a Tory marginal. They've lost three votes in this household. I am not convinced that Labour - the only likely alternative - are likely to do anything better. The Bedroom Tax does not apply to me but as a result of its impact on disabled people I will not be voting Tory again. Neither will I vote for the Lib Dems who did not have the backbone to stop it. I will be voting tactically in the hope that this Government will fall and take IDS with them."

I'LL NEVER VOTE TORY/LIB DEM AGAIN

Then there is the DWP deaths

DWP-related deaths [2010 onwards]

These people died since the coalition took office in 2010 in DWP-related circumstances. Some Tories refer to these deaths as mere statistics. They are real people not numbers. Their names and circumstances of their death should never be forgotten or covered up as one Tory suggested. I know if I died in a DWP related death I'd want people to see me on this list too. It highlights the wrongdoing which comes right from the top with policy. You have a chance to change things at a general election so please vote.

Remember the DWP perform their tasks at the behest of the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions. Therefore, unless they have not followed the rules the deaths of these people cannot be considered their fault. The blame lies firmly with the Secret of State for Work and Pensions. All the people listed died in 2010 onwards when the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions was Iain Duncan Smith, a Tory Minister. Please keep this in mind along with the people above when you next vote.

Here is one attitude to the above deaths:

Andrew Shaw George Duncan Smith: "I'm improving peoples lives, I'm getting them off benefits and I'm proud of my achievements."
