No palace hall its ceiling tall
 His kingly head spread over
 There only stood a stable rude
 The heavenly Babe to cover

Nor raiment gay as there He lay,
 Adorn'd the infant stranger;
 Poor humble child of Mother mild
 She laid Him in a manger

But from afar a splended star
 The wise men westward turning
 The livelong night saw pure and bright
 Above His birthplace burning
