

Glynne Powell What I want to know is why this company donated £25,000 to the Tory party

Like · Reply · 21 · 25 September at 18:55

Glynne Powell I'm still waiting for an answer to this question - why did Warburtons donate £25,000 to the Tory party?

Like · 4 · 26 September at 16:06

Mairi Louise Livingston i still haven't received my free thins 😞 shocking!!

Like · 27 September at 11:25

Glynne Powell Perhaps they've been eaten by whoever accepted the £25,000 Mairi

Like · 2 · 27 September at 11:36

Warburtons Hi Mairi Louise, we've sent you an email and will get your thins out to you soon! 😊

Like · 27 September at 14:41

Glynne Powell I'll conclude Warburtons have no answer to my question so I'll publish this thread in a separate group.

Like · 5 · 27 September at 17:17

Glynne Powell It would have been wiser to reply: <http://alturl.com/rc54z>

Like · 4 · 27 September at 21:02

Jim Dallas Hopefully, the local shop will have an alternative brand available when I go round this morning...

Like · 2 · Yesterday at 08:56

Tezz Honeyford I kind of liked your bread, but the torys?? You are going to have to get a PR consultant in for this, and quickly.

Like · 1 · 19 hours ago

Glynne Powell People are free to buy whichever bread they wish but Warburtons should have at least acknowledged my question if they couldn't answer it right away. Still no acknowledgement let alone an answer to my question.

Like · 2 · 18 hours ago

Write a reply...

Lindsay Rodgers Ok So you donated £25,000 to the Tories. Right so voting with my purse not going to buying your products again.

Unlike · Reply · 17 · 25 September at 20:02

Warburtons Hi Lindsay, we wanted to acknowledge your comment. We do care about what our customers think and have listened to your feedback.

Like · 26 September at 09:49

Wal Riley But no-one else's, apparently....

Like · 3 · Yesterday at 07:53

Pau Paz Purchasing power is quite a strong tool is it not...

Like · 4 · Yesterday at 09:16

David Sparks "We do care about what our customers think and have listened to your feedback" - but you have still not answered the question. So again, as a (now previous) customer, I'd like to ask: Why has Warburtons donated £25k to the Conservative party?

Unlike · 6 · Yesterday at 10:36

Write a reply...

Kevin Leonard Unlike some I fully understand that you are entitled to support whichever political party you choose in order to enhance your business prospects and maximise profits, in the days before social media this was known as a bribe/bung/brown paper promotion and was generally kept secret from the general public who are those providing growth and profit to your company.

How sad that a once proud family business known for providing good wholesome sustenance will now be associated with one of if not the worst governments on record when it comes to sustaining the weakest within our nation.

Just thought I would pop by and add my refusal to buy any of your products again due to my belief that we as a nation should all work together against tyranny and terror such as that being enacted by this coalition of incompetence.

I would ask all who read this page to join in with the boycott of what was once in my opinion a decent company.

Like · Reply · 15 · Yesterday at 09:00

Alyson Fletcher How can they donate to the Tory party, when 1,000s are going hungry because of this party. Could not you give cash to help feed people or free bread??? x

Unlike · Reply · 14 · 25 September at 19:18

Wal Riley You would be well advised not to make any more donations to the nasty party. It's doing your public image no good at all, contributing to a morally bankrupt political movement that attacks the very customers you want to make sales to.

Unlike · Reply · 11 · 27 September at 19:39

Peter Willoughby Maybe they should demand a refund for that £25,000 from the Tories for failing to live up to a single one of their election promises, and give the money to the foodbanks instead?

Unlike · Reply · 11 · 25 September at 23:37

Paul Jenkins totally agree Peter

Like · 26 September at 20:05

Write a reply...

Michelle Hayward And have spoken to local corner shop they are no longer going to be stocking your product

Like · Reply · 8 · Yesterday at 08:37 via mobile

Michelle Hayward Just found out about your donations to Tory party and putting workers on zero hours contracts. What a shame - have been a life long consumer but will be taking my custom elsewhere from now on!

Like · Reply · 8 · Yesterday at 08:35 via mobile

Emma Hughes Joining the boycott, and it's a shame because I like your products but the thought that ANY money I spend with you goes to fund this despicable bunch of liars we have to suffer in government right now means I will look elsewhere for my bread.

Like · Reply · 5 · 23 hours ago

Tamara Linn Hiatt Email below sent to customercare@warburtons.co.uk and shared on my facebook page. Also about to compose an abbreviated Twitter complaint.

For the attention of your board and shareholders

For some peculiar reason, I believed your company was a supporter of the working class, the common man. Must be the marketing. Now I have discovered you are making political contributions to the Conservative party, which clearly exploits and abuses the most vulnerable in society and sneers at the working class.

As long as your company makes donations to the conservative party, I will not be purchasing any of your products. I will encourage my friends and family to boycott your products. As well, I will not be providing Warburton products to my local food banks.

Tamara Hiatt

Like · Reply · 6 · Yesterday at 11:22 · Edited

Neil McCart Instead of just baking bread this company wishes to further Tory propaganda. I certainly won't be buying Warburtons products again.

Like · Reply · 5 · Yesterday at 09:06 · Edited

Warburtons Hi all - we have listened to your comments and take on board the fact that on political issues opinions are firmly held

Like · Reply · 1 · 26 September at 09:57

Wal Riley Wow, the very definition of a non-committal reply. A career in politics beckons!

Like · 1 · Yesterday at 07:55

Peter Wilson Warburtons this is one example of what you are supporting. Where are your morals?

<http://www.pontefractandcastlefordexpress.co.uk/...>

Like · 2 · Yesterday at 09:40

Chris Hicks You donated as a COMPANY using profits earned from customers, the majority of whom will not be Conservative party supporters. How do you justify that?

Unlike · 5 · Yesterday at 11:27

Write a reply...

Paul Jenkins massive boycott of Warburton's, no longer buying any of the products

Like · Reply · 11 · 25 September at 21:26

Dawn Grant these are Tory Donors Warburtons sandwiches.

Unlike · Reply · 4 · 25 September at 19:06

Geoff Sauderson should it not be PAWS OFF THESE ARE CAMERONS

Unlike · Reply · 3 · 22 hours ago

Tishy Nutty Nicholls ive just been reading warburtons suppoort for the Tories. the Tories need to be booted out for what they have done to this country and this company supports them!!!! i refuse to buy from warburtons any longer as i dont want my money to help fund the Tories.

Like · Reply · 3 · 23 hours ago

Ken Heskin Warburtons... Tory supporters born and "bread".... Shame on you

Like · Reply · 3 · Yesterday at 11:33

Tom Quinton Me and my family will not be eating, your products anymore life long ban, What a disgrace you are Warburtons, you're toast

Like · Reply · 3 · Yesterday at 10:02

Carl Williams I gather Warburtons donate to the Tories, and occasionally host their propaganda events too. I will be boycotting Warburtons products henceforth, and encouraging everyone I know to do so, too.

The present government's persistent and vicious attack on the most vulnerable in our society is shocking, unforgivable and, frankly, evil. I will not knowingly support any business that props them up, in however small a way.

Oh, and Warburtons crumpets are very poor. I have been avoiding those anyway, but haven't gone out of my way to avoid other Warburtons products. Until now.

Like · Reply · 2 · 8 hours ago

Patricia Figg I've had that happen before, it really hacked me off for the rest of the day.

Like · Reply · 1 · 25 September at 13:55 via mobile

Robin Richardson Wouldn't buy Warburton's products if it goes to subsidies the worst self-serving government in living memory.

Like · Reply · 19 hours ago

Lawful Rebellion just to let u know that i will no longer buy your products. this is because you donated to the tory party

Like · Reply · 1 · 14 hours ago

Michelle Coxon Really, i didnt know that Robin Richardson, supermarkets own brands from now on then! I refuse to line anyones pockets that pays into tory piss! Thanks for the heads up 😊

Like · Reply · 1 · 19 hours ago via mobile

Geoff Saunderson Ok im sure its no big deal but why did you donate 25k to the tory party again?

Like · Reply · 1 · 22 hours ago

Caroline Job but if you take it in a cool lunch bag that we stock with an ice pack, no need for any labels or stuffing in a fridge... #justsaying

Like · Reply · 1 · 25 September at 14:14

Martin Orton You gave my money to the Tories. You will receive no more money from me, my family or my friends.

Like · Reply · 4 hours ago via mobile

Michelle Coxon Kingsmill all the way for me, since hearing what party warburtons bung to, shame cos i did like a warburtons toastie, but cant support a family based company who gives money to a party destroying Britain! KINGSMILL or MOTHERSPRIDE is the way!!

Like · Reply · 21 hours ago

Robin Richardson WARBURTON,S, KINGSMILL , MOTHERSPRIDE and HOVIS are all part of the same company ! I don't buy any of their products 😊

Like · 4 · 19 hours ago

Write a reply...

Alicia Jo Not I, obviously. xxx

Like · Reply · 25 September at 14:15

La Spaniard IDEA!! Lol 😊

Like · Reply · 25 September at 12:26

Ali Dee People are going without food because of the ConDems and their stamping down working (or trying to) people.

Like · Reply · 1 · 21 hours ago

Rob Porteous Fae's ???

Like · Reply · 1 · 25 September at 13:05

