

Reynardine

D A D

19th century Sussex

One night up- on my ram- - bles two miles be- low Fer - moy. I

0	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	1
0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
2	1	2	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1

met a far -mer's daugh- - ter all on the moun- tain high. I

0	2	1	1	0	1	0	2	1	0	1
0	3	0	2	1	0	2	1	0	0	0
2	1	2	3	4	2	0	2	1	0	1

said, "My pretty fair maid your beau - ty shines so clear. All

0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	2	0
0	0	1	3	0	3	4	3	0	0
2	1	2	3	4	2	0	2	0	0

on these lone - some moun tains I'm glad to meet you here.

0	0	3	2	3	0	1	0
0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0
2	1	0	0	0	0	0	0

She said, "Kind sir be civil, my company forsake,
For in my own opinion, I fear you are a rake.
And if my parents they should know, my life they would destroy
For keeping of your company all on the mountains high."

He said, "My dear, I am no rake brought up in Venus' train.
But I'm seeking for concealment all on the lonesome plain.
Your beauty so enticed me I could not pass it by,
So it's with my gun I'll guard you, all on the mountain high."

Her cherry cheek and ruby lips they lost their former dye.
She fainted in his arms there all on the mountain high
They hadn't kissed but once or twice till she came round again,
With that she kindly asked him, "Pray tell to me your name".

"If by chance you look for me perhaps you'll not me find
For I'll be in my castle - enquire for Reynardine."
Sun and dark she followed him, his teeth did brightly shine,
And he led her over the mountains, thay sly, bold Reynardine.