Extension horticulturists often accompany us on farm visits to advise our farmers

We work with Extension on training and research.

Taking a Food Safety: from field to market course is required to sell at the market. We have trained over 300 farmers and gardeners in food safety.

Cooking demonstrations usually at every weekday market. & sometimes on Saturdays.

An average of 150 kids eat at every market between the end of May and mid-August when school starts up again.

The market has accepted food stamps, debit and credit cards and checks since 2007.

When customers use their food stamp cards we match up to $25 with free tokens good for fruits and vegetables. We also have a privately funded WIC coupon program.

The Webb City
Farmers Market

Eat local – Eat fresh

FARM FRESHNESS AT THE MARKET

Farm fresh produce, humanely raised meats, herbs, jams and jellies and so much more can be found at the Webb City Farmers Market. Founded in 2000, the market has grown to more than 55 vendors that provide the community with fresh, local food. We are a producer-only market so you are buying directly from the farmer, baker, rancher

There's music and a meal at every market.

All aboard Old No.60 for a free ride around King Jack Park. I think I can, I think I can, I think I can! This month, Clickety Clack features the children's classic The Little Engine That Could. Listen to the story, follow along in the library book placed on each bench. Make a paper engineer's hat at the craft tables. The streetcar pulls out of the station west of the farmers market every 20 minutes. Make a reservation to ensure a seat or take a chance on seats being available - they often are.
