

“A state of mind, like malice, “can seldom be proved by direct evidence. It must be inferred from objective or external circumstantial evidence.”
(Drum v. Bleau, Fox & Associates (2003) 107 Cal.App.4 1009, 1021.